202 West Maple, Frazee MN 56544 May 6, 2018 Website: <http://frazeesacredheart.org>

Here is a thought from last week's homily: At every Mass Jesus teaches us that words alone are not enough. We say, "Peace be with you," and then we grasp hands in a gesture of philia—brotherly love. To shake hands is not an empty gesture. It is an expression of affectionate regard, friendship and loyalty. We say the words; then we give flesh to the words by our actions.

Can you remember the day you received your first communion? I do not remember the day, but I remember the picture of the day. I have about 20 classmates. The boys are dressed in black and white, or is it just that the picture is a black and white? The girls are in their white dresses and veils. If you change hair dos and glasses, the pictures are timeless. Mine is just like yours and yours is just like a thousand others.

Jesus is the alpha and the omega, the beginning and end of time. Jesus spoke, and we came into being. At the end of time he will speak, and we will rise from our graves. The sign of peace we share that day will be grand—hands taking flesh again, standing in an embrace with the Word made flesh.

It is God's desire and design that the grand reunion of the Communion of Saints includes everyone. In heaven. There is no friend or foe, but only brothers and sisters, adopted by the Father and brothers of Jesus Christ. That day will heal the wounds that now separate us. We forgive now, but our forgiveness cannot demand or require repentance of those who hurt us. Maybe healing will wait until we stand hand in hand in the blinding light of eternal truth.

Can you share the good news with someone? Jesus is alive! Some of our neighbors need to hear the good news that Jesus lives and that he has set us free. In proclaiming this truth, we will come to believe it more firmly ourselves.

Our first communion and every communion to follow foreshadow the heavenly banquet. There we shall with him remain, partners of his endless reign. There his face unclouded see, lie with him eternally.
