Here is thought from last week's homily: Anything I can do, You can do better, You can do anything better than me.

I want to tell you a story from last week. I went tubing on the Ottetail River. About a quarter of the way down the river I came upon two young men. They asked if they could join me for the float, commenting, "One of the reasons for tubing is to meet new people." So we traveled together to the end. It was obvious that they were intoxicated. They admitted to being intoxicated. It was about 4:00 in the afternoon, and they had been drinking since 10:30 am. We talked about driving, and they agreed to let me drive them home—one of them had parents about 10 minutes from the tubing launch. As we exited the river, both of the young men stumbled and fell. They had difficulty walking up the hill to the parking lot. My vehicle was in a different section of the lot. I went to change clothes and to drop some items in my truck. In the few minutes they were out of my sight they managed drive away. I was sick about this for several days. I thought that I had acted responsibly by offering to drive them home. Clearly it wasn't enough.

I haven't heard of an accident and I am relieved. I invite the teenagers of the parish to offer advice regarding how I could have acted differently. Send me your comments and I will include them in the bulletin in the weeks to come. (frdavid.shfre@arvig.net)

I have received several inquiries regarding what is next for Fr. Ilango. Here is a message from him:

As I am taking a Sabbatical for three months, I am leaving to India on July 1st. First part of my Sabbatical would be to have a Missionary experience in the North Eastern part of India. From July 28 to August 25, I am attending a course on Pastoral Counselling in a Franciscan Institute. Then the third part of this experience would be to spend some time with Mom and Dad. Since I am in India, I will use the fourth month as the time for my annual vacation. I will come back to Minnesota on October 31st. I plan to stay in the rectory of Lake Park and go around helping our brother priests on weekends. I have already agreed to preach a few parish missions, too. I will accept my new assignment on July 1, 2019, as the Bishop offers me. Kindly keep me in your prayers that I come back refreshed and energized. God bless you all.
