202 West Maple, Frazee MN 56544 March 31, 2019 Website: <http://frazeesacredheart.org>

Here is a thought for last week's homily: When you see or hear of terrible things happening, don't think for a moment that you know the mind of God. Rather, try to help those who are suffering. Be grateful for all that you have. Repent of your own sins and believe in the gospel.

I needed to fix a toilet. The valve to fill in the tank is mucked up with minerals and stopped working. To replace the fill mechanism is not a complicated job...or is it?

The shut-off didn't shut off. I disconnected the water feed and water began to fill the bathroom. I struggled some more with the valve and it wouldn't budge. I needed six hands and a whole bunch of tools and supplies that were not handy. After the futile attempts to contain the water and coax the valve closed, I decided to just let it run while I replaced the broken stuff in the tank. It took about a minute to install the new filler. Then I connected the water line, and, as quickly as it began, the crisis was over.

It is difficult to have clear vision when we are in the midst of a crisis. It is difficult to identify the heart of the problem and work at the fix when symptoms are pouring into our lives.

A child acting out, a spouse stepping out, a friend blowing up, a whole church imploding...there is usually a distance from the symptom to the heart of those hurting. We can spend an inordinate amount of energy and time easing the symptoms. It takes wisdom and prayer and courage to enter the heart where healing has a chance.

One more minute of water spilling out onto the floor was the right choice. To sit for 20 minutes or an eternity with a broken valve would have been futile and sad.
